

Foreword

Volume 7 of the African Yearbook of Rhetoric brings together an array of analyses from diverse perspectives concerning foundation and forecast.

As is our practice, senior writers and PhD candidates have joined forces to produce what we hope to be an interesting read.

The Editor and the Board are grateful to Dr Justin Snell, A W Mellon-UCT Fellow in Rhetoric Studies, for having taken on the Guest Editing of Volume 7, and we recognise the A W Mellon Foundation of New York for their support to Rhetoric Studies.

Last but not least this issue marks a new foundation, and a casting forward of the Journal, as we salute the Department of Private Law, at the University of Cape Town (UCT), for having taken rhetoric in its fold.

Philippe-Joseph Salazar
Editor